

THE COCOA HORIZONS FOUNDATION

Brand guidelines

Version 2.0 / Updated in January 2026

INTRODUCTION

These guidelines outline the elements which make up the Cocoa Horizons Foundation's brand. They include all the rules to create beautiful and consistent communications.

This will help you in producing exciting designs with a high degree of creative flexibility.

1.1 Brand essence

The Cocoa Horizons Foundation brand essence expresses the truth about the brand:

Scaling impact and driving change to improve livelihoods in cocoa communities.

The Foundation's mission statement describes how this is achieved:

To improve the livelihoods of cocoa farmers and their communities through the promotion of sustainable, entrepreneurial farming, improved productivity, and community development, which protect nature and children.

The Cocoa Horizons Foundation serves as a platform for partners to scale up their own impact by targeting funds and pooling resources, helping to drive the demand for sustainable cocoa. The rest of this document provides guiding principles for bringing our brand essence to life through visual elements, including color, photography, typography, and tone of voice.

The logo

This is the Cocoa Horizons Foundation logo. It is our identifying mark and is to be used in accordance with the specifications that follow.

Logo usage

The logo is designed to be used across a broad range of communications, including print, online, film, television, and more.

The logo can be used in all of the brand colors. It can also be placed over photography or on a colored background when used in white.

When placing over photography please ensure that it is done carefully so it is fully legible.

When color is not available it can be used in black.

When placed on to consumer packaging it is allowed to be used in any of the provided color options that complements the brand, respecting the guidelines of Cocoa Horizons.

Logo usage

When using the Cocoa Horizons Foundation logo on product packaging or other consumer-facing materials:

- The Foundation logo as a standalone logo on pack should be avoided
- The logo should be accompanied by a descriptive text that clearly explains the nature of the relationship to the Cocoa Horizons program
- The logo should be accompanied by a link or QR code to the official Cocoa Horizons website. The recommended logo with QR code can be used in any of the provided color options that complement the brand
- Claims must not imply certification, generic environmental superiority, or impact areas not documented and verified by the Foundation
- Logo + descriptive wording + website should be displayed together with a maximum distance of 10 mm.

Recommended use of logo with QR code (vertical, horizontal)

Logo to be used with descriptive text and link/QR code to the official Cocoa Horizons website.

Logo color

The logo has four color options, plus black and white.

The primary logo color should be used where possible. But the brand is flexible and there is a set of secondary logo colors to use if more appropriate.

Logo isolation area

The logo should always be surrounded by a minimum area of space. This area of isolation ensures that headlines, text, or other visual elements do not encroach on the logo.

The isolation area is defined as one quarter of the total logo width. This area of separation is the minimum and should be increased where possible.

Isolation area for print

The logo minimum size

The logo should never be used smaller than 15mm wide in print or 30px online.

Incorrect usage

When using the Cocoa Horizons Foundation logo the rules must be followed at all times.

Do not distort or amend the logo in any form.

Please follow the guidance on logo color when overlaying photography.

Gradients, added visual effects, and any altered typography or design should never be done.

File types

The Cocoa Horizons Foundation logo is supplied in a variety of file formats for every need.

The master file, the one that should be referenced in all cases, is the EPS file. This is used by designers and printers, and will achieve the best results. Even non-technical users will be able to use this file format in programs like Microsoft Word.

Please read the basic description of each file format for a better understanding of what application each is suited to.

EPS

File for print

The EPS file is the master version of the logo and should be used in the majority of situations. An EPS file is a vector format, this means that it scales infinitely without loss of quality. Design professionals will use this format in the first instance.

SVG

File for web

The SVG file is intended for use on the web and is also a vector format. An SVG file should be used online where possible. In the event of the EPS version of the logo being unavailable, the SVG version will serve as a satisfactory replacement. If opened in a vector editing program (e.g. Adobe Illustrator, the SVG file can be re-saved as an EPS file).

JPG

File for print and web if an EPS or SVG is not appropriate

The JPG file is perhaps most recognizable and is a simple picture format. This format is suited to both print and web. However, due to quality limitations it should only be used at smaller sizes (it cannot scale infinitely).

Use of the Cocoa Horizons logo and tools

Customers of Barry Callebaut’s HORIZONS cocoa products can use the Cocoa Horizons logo on-pack, and access the Cocoa Chronicles and other marketing material, if 100% of their brand or line of products uses Cocoa Horizons-sourced cocoa or chocolate.

Single origins

If a customer is purchasing and communicating on a single origin other than where the Cocoa Horizons Foundation operates, yet wishes to contribute to and communicate on Cocoa Horizons, this is possible with the following provisions:

Examples of accurate communication include:

- The sale of [customer’s] single origin cocoa/chocolate supports cocoa sustainability activities where the Cocoa Horizons Foundation operates.
- [This product] supports the activities of the Cocoa Horizons Foundation.
- The sale of [customer’s] single origin cocoa/chocolate supports cocoa sustainability activities in Côte d’Ivoire, Ghana, Cameroon, Nigeria, Ecuador, Brazil and Indonesia.

1.3 Primary color palette

Primary colors

The Cocoa Horizons Foundation uses a defined color palette that brings the brand to life, enabling consistency and variation.

Please choose color pairings that work harmoniously together to create attractive communications.

Our primary color palette consists of brighter colors inspired by the cocoa pod and locations where cocoa is produced. Please note that the same color can look different in print and on screen but have been chosen so as to be consistent across all media.

Headline fonts

We have two headline fonts: Return to Sender and Origo. Both fonts are modern, sophisticated, and expressive. They should be used to express big punchy messages and to bring attention to messaging that needs to stand out.

Return to Sender

Origo

ABCDEFGHIJKLMNOPQRSTUVWXYZ
abcdefghijklmnopqrstuvwxyz

Body copy

We use Montserrat for body copy and longer spans of text. It is highly legible and should be used for all body copy.

Montserrat Semibold can be used to highlight words within the text or for subheadings.

Standard font

For individuals creating anything written, such as Microsoft PowerPoint presentations or letters, etc., the standard font, Montserrat, should always be used.

Brand photography

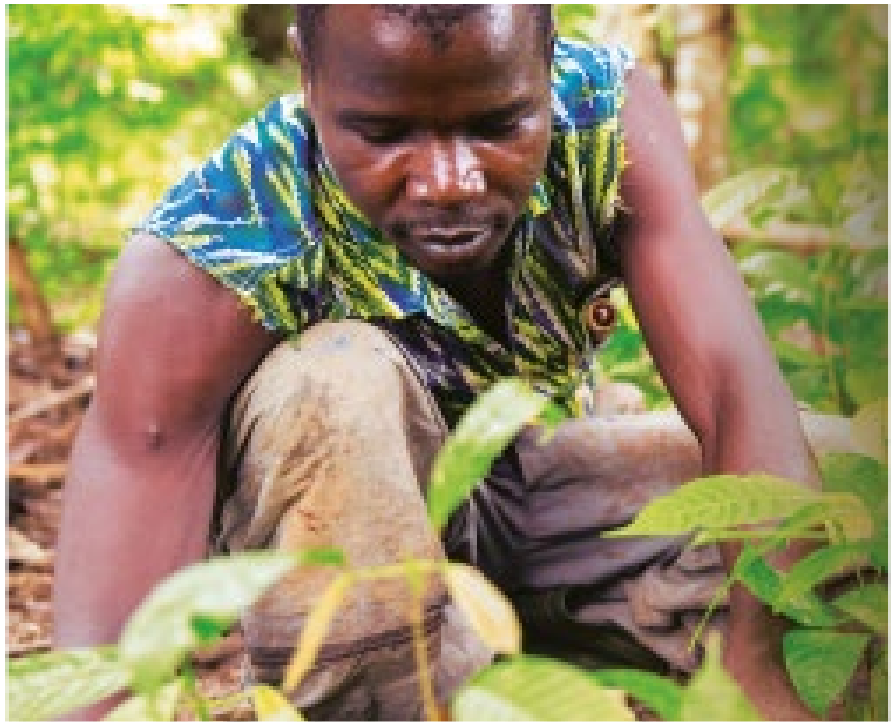

We place great importance on using high quality photography along with our logo. It is the strongest element of our brand and should be a priority.

Our photography should always be interesting, engaging, attractive, and informative. The Cocoa Horizons Foundation is a force for change within the industry and must therefore always be portrayed with positive photography.

Images should appear genuine; the look and feel should be colorful, lively, inviting, and warm.

We pay special attention to safeguarding and privacy in our photography, especially when it comes to child imagery.

All new imagery should be approved by the Cocoa Horizons Foundation. Images captured should only be used for pre-approved business purposes.

Photography don'ts

Good photography is an essential component of the Cocoa Horizons Foundation brand. It is important to maintain high standards on all of our communications. Please exercise good judgment when commissioning, selecting, or even taking new photography.

Avoid taking identifiable photos of children (showing faces). When depicting people, do not share the person's full name and exact location or personal/visual details, such as school uniform that could link the child to a school, to avoid putting people at risk of harm.

These examples show some of what is not acceptable photography: intrusive or compromising images, poorly framed, badly lit, out of focus, uninteresting, bad color, unprofessional, etc.

Use of Cocoa Horizons photography

Customers of Barry Callebaut’s HORIZONS cocoa products meeting the criteria on page 12 can also use selected photography provided by the Foundation with the following conditions:

- All photography must contain the Cocoa Horizons Foundation copyright.
- For use of photography off-pack, including websites, brochures, etc., the image must have the Cocoa Horizons logo superimposed upon it.

See best practice examples on the right.

Use appropriate attribution language:

“Cocoa Horizons” is a trademark owned by the Cocoa Horizons Foundation, and used with permission.

Design assets

Cocoa Horizons Foundation design assets are used to enrich the brand identity creating uniqueness and authenticity. The design assets are simple, using hand drawing style and with colors in line with our pallet. They help reinforcing key messages.

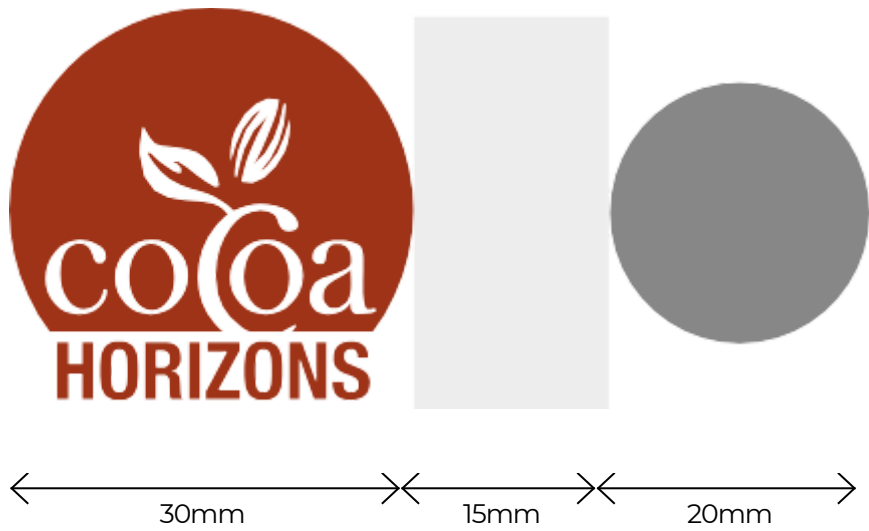

Co-branding

When using the logo in conjunction with other logos, we recommend the following suggestions to help guide the design process.

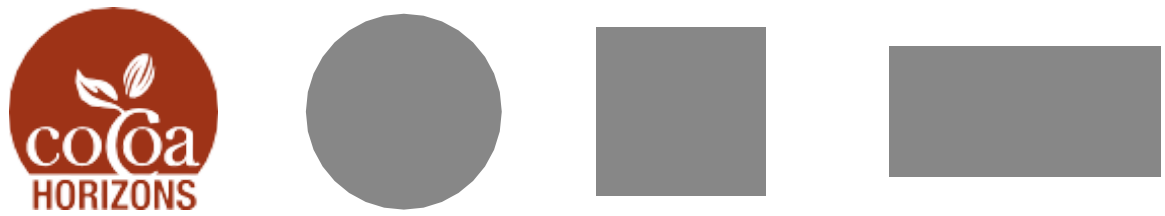

When Cocoa Horizons Foundation is the lead brand in an initiative, our logo is to be a third bigger than the other partner logos.

If we're equal partners with other brands, ensure logos are the same size or take up equal space if they're an awkward shape.

Cocoa Horizons logo as primary

Cocoa Horizons logo as equal

Implementing partner logos

The Cocoa Horizons Foundation works with implementing partners on the ground in origin countries to carry out activities supporting the mission of the Foundation. When positioning the Cocoa Horizons Foundation logo alongside an implementing partner logo, please ensure the Cocoa Horizons Foundation logo sits directly above or first in line. The example shows how the logos should be positioned on a T-shirt.

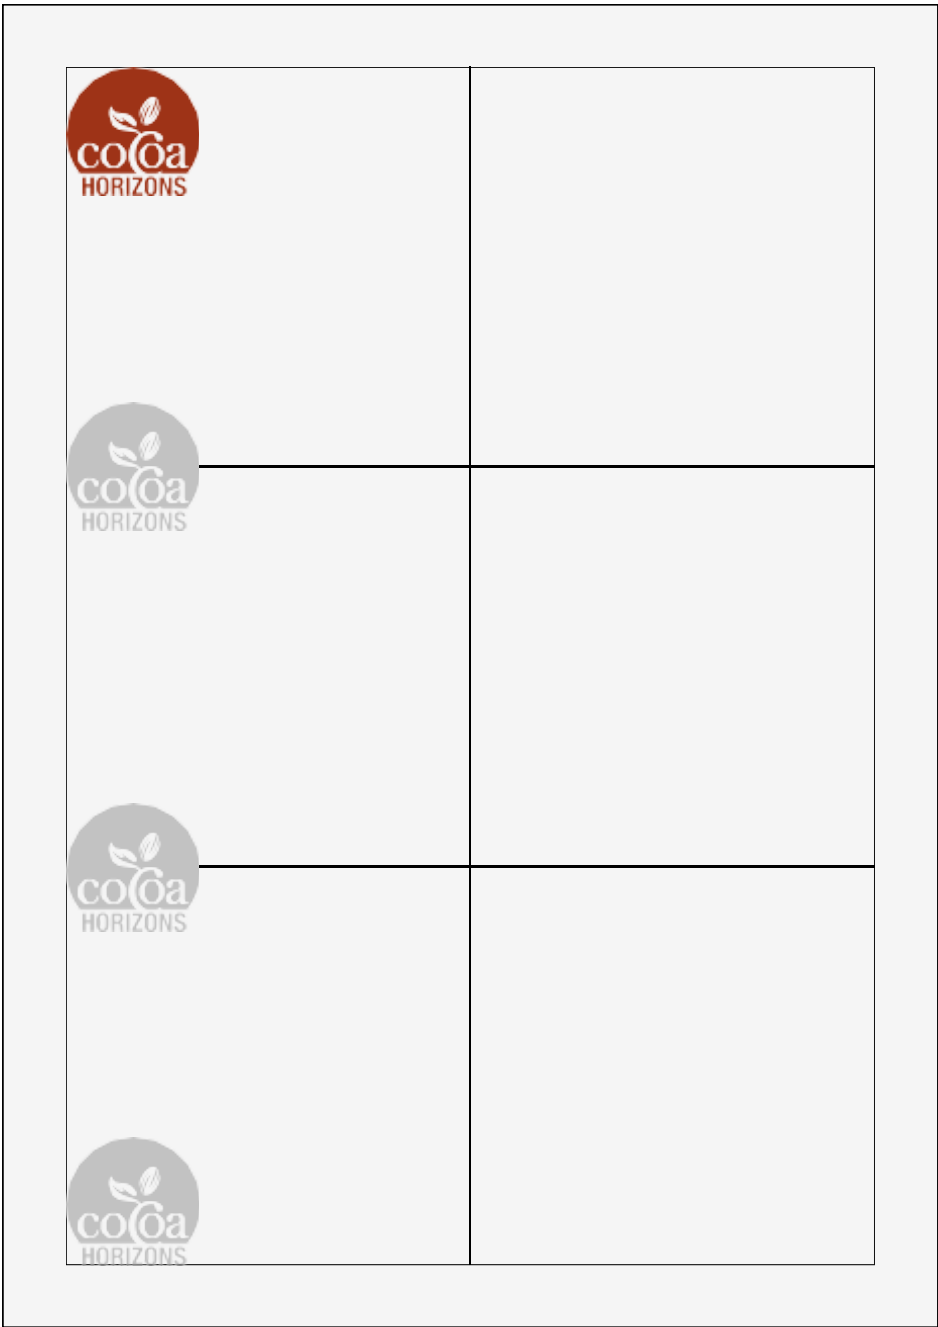

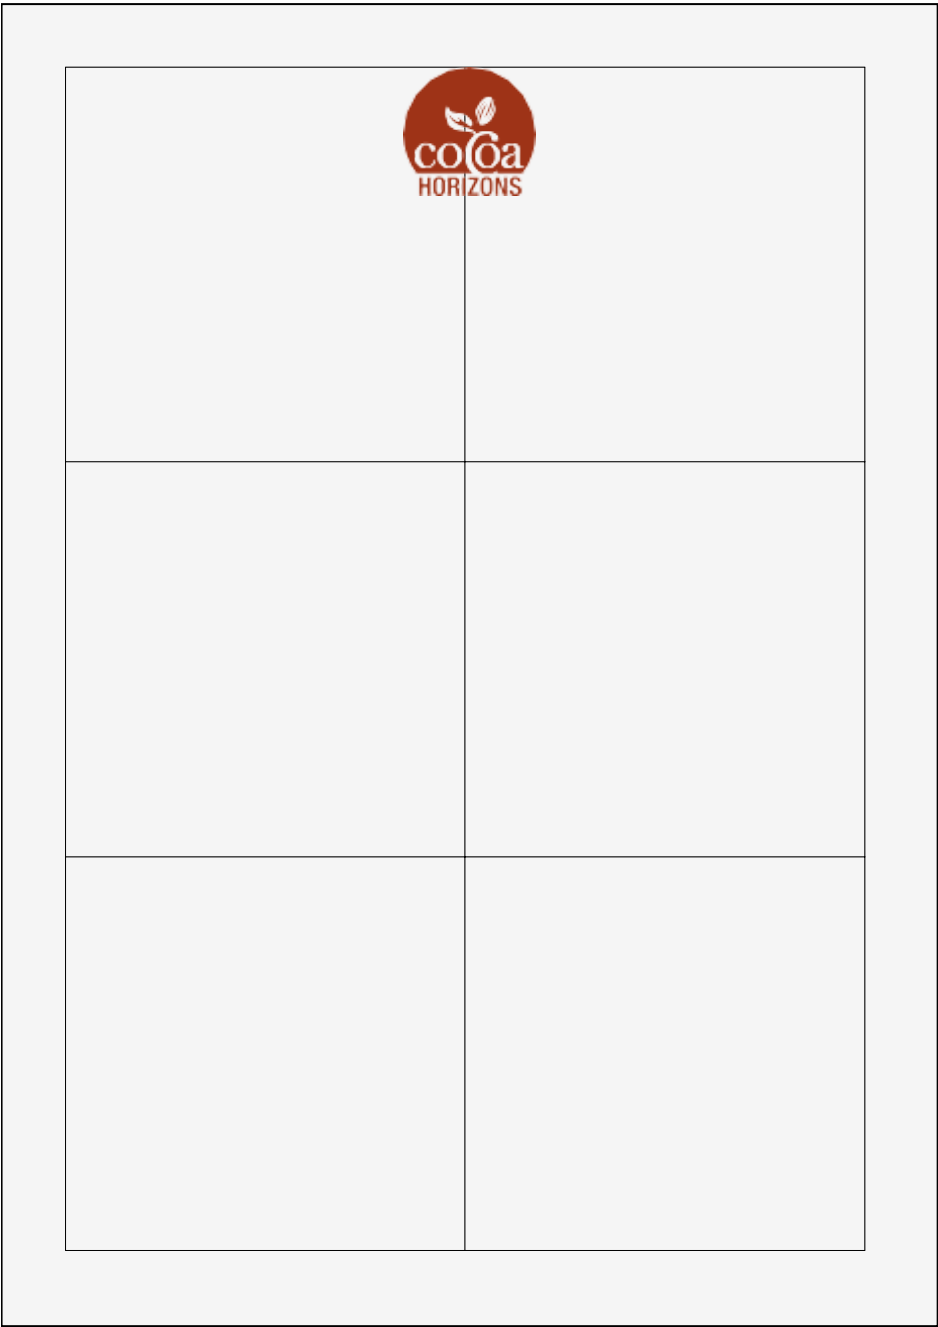

Logo positioning

As a brand, the position of the Cocoa Horizons Foundation logo is flexible and not subject to many restrictions.

Please use your good judgment to design pleasing and effective communications with our brand. We can recommend several positioning options to get you started though.

We encourage our logo to be centered or positioned at the left.

How we use language

Copy for the Cocoa Horizons Foundation is interesting, engaging, and informative. The language is American English.

When referring to the Foundation, the following are all acceptable: Cocoa Horizons, the Cocoa Horizons Foundation, the Foundation. When referring collectively to the activities in which the Foundation is involved, the following are all acceptable: Cocoa Horizons’ activities, the Foundation’s activities, our activities.

Aspirational

Paint a positive picture of the future. But be realistic also, and describe the challenges. State strategy and goals simply.

Factual

Facts give the reader context and support any claims. Be specific not generic. Use stories and examples to bring the message to life. Include quotes from people involved with or helped by Cocoa Horizons.

Active

Writing has more energy when it uses an active voice.

- ☒ We will make new funding available for education.
- ☐ New funding will be made available for education.

Direct and personal

Use a direct, personal voice more than an impersonal one.

- ☒ We are working with our partners in cocoa communities.

The impersonal voice can still be used occasionally, though, to avoid ambiguity, add emphasis, and bring variety.

- ☒ The Cocoa Horizons Foundation is working with its partners in cocoa communities.

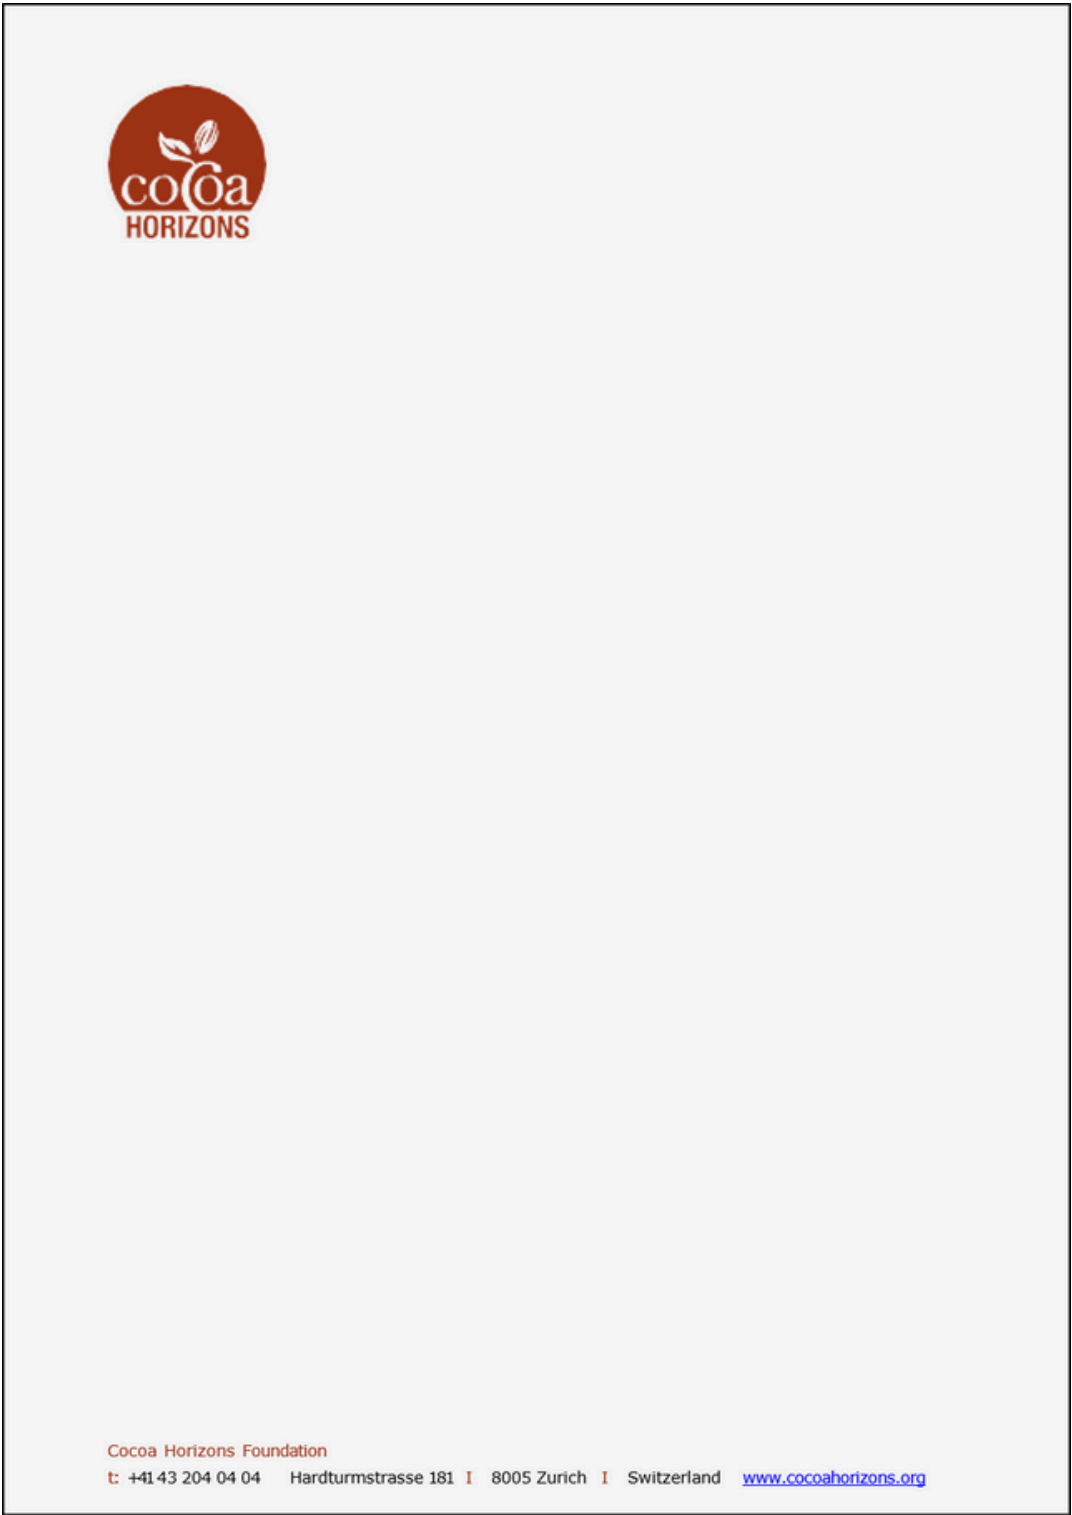

Clear

Write clearly and concisely, avoiding jargon, acronyms, and repetition. Use short, plain words where possible.

- ☒ Use short words not long ones.
- ☐ Utilize short words not long ones.

Letterhead

Here is an example of the Cocoa Horizons Foundation letterhead. It is available to use as a Microsoft Word template.
